

Young GIs Captured By Insurgents

News reports say GIs were kidnapped.

There Is A Big Offensive To Regain Baghdad

So GIs established checkpoints outside of town.

They Were Manning Checkpoints Around Baghdad

Checkpoints Are Outside Baghdad On The Main Highway

It was a deserted stretch, with an open field of vision, with staged barriers for safety.

The Soldiers Were Outside Yusufijah

Yusufiyah is a farm town in the middle of nowhere, and it's not on a main road.

Israeli Agents Were Behind The Murders, And The Army Will Level Yusufiya In Retaliation

The fact that the soldiers' bodies were found at the power plant, points to a provocateur operation.

Something Isn't Right

A news report states: - Three US soldiers were manning a checkpoint on the outskirts of Baghdad, and were captured. When you look a little closer, that can't be right. Baghdad is a wild west show, where death squads are kidnapping, executing, and bombing in broad daylight. The normal contingent would consist of at least ten soldiers. You just don't stick three soldiers at an isolated checkpoint. Whoever kidnapped them, had to be someone they trusted.

The soldiers were manning a remote checkpoint, and never would have let a a car full of Arabs get that close. As far as an Iraqi police patrol, they would trust them even less. There was no firefight, and no emergency communications.

The only possible scenario would involve someone imbedded with the soldiers, and that could only be an Iraqi interpreter, or most likely, an Israeli advisor.

Embedded Israeli Advisors

Senior US commanders have inserted Israeli IDF advisors in all lines of command.

Following their advice has led to three ambushes the last six months.

This Ambush Had To Be Pretty Sophisticated

- You got a two marines on a 50 Caliber machine gun
- Next you have six at the checkpoint
- Behind them another Humvee with a officer and radio man

They were taken by complete surprise, by someone they trusted.

The latest story says, there were three humvees, snipers shot at them, two humvees gave chase, and insurgents then captured the third one.

Bodies Found

The mutilated, and beheaded, bodies were found on 6/20/2006 at the Yusafiya power plant. This is the same tactic Israeli intelligence agents used on the Halverston ambush. in Fallujah.

Real insurgents don't plant beheaded bodies at their front doorstep.

So What Happened?

Whoever was imbedded, shot the soldier manning the 50 caliber machine gun for starters. The others just stuck their rifles in the remaining soldiers' faces. There were no Arabs in cars, because the soldiers manning the checkpoint would have had been locked and loaded. This happened while they were sitting around eating.

The official story, that there was only three marines at a major chokepoint, is totally bogus. The last two ambushes were covered up as accidents, so this story becomes extremely suspect.
